The Heart for the Wellcome Trust, London,
2007

Project summary

The design (with Coombe Architecture) of The Heart at the Wellcome Collection (2007) that traced the cultural significance of the heart through history in art, medicine, religion and romance. The brief asked us to create an art exhibition out of a medical subject to attract audiences from across the art/science divide. We presented a diverse array of exhibits (e.g: a transplanted human heart, a £3m Leonardo drawing, an Aztec sacrificial dagger plus books, paintings, sculptures, film, music and surgical instruments) in a visually unified and highly secure environment.

The Heart of Man
Of 14 Chambers
There is the other substance, of the heart of man
That we have spoken of, that we have seen that nature
Of nature and nature the perfectest substance
Of the heart of man
The heart of man is made of two parts
And the parts are made of two parts
The heart of man is made of two parts
The heart of man is made of two parts
The heart of man is made of two parts
